The Housing & Households

The diagram illustrates the housing and households distribution across Qatar. The maps and charts indicate the number of households and the types of housing units in different areas. The data is color-coded to represent different categories, such as income levels or household sizes. The chart at the bottom shows the trend over time, highlighting the growth and changes in housing demographics.
The Population

The map illustrates the distribution of population density across Qatar. The colors range from light brown to dark brown, indicating varying levels of population concentration.

Legend:
- Light Brown: Low Population Density
- Dark Brown: High Population Density

The map highlights the dense populations concentrated in the cities, particularly in the capital city of Doha. The rural areas show lower population densities, with some areas marked in light brown indicating very low population presence.
